Strategic Plan and School Charter

2018 - 2020

THE MACLEANS COLLEGE STRATEGIC PLAN

INTRODUCTION

Location and Description of the Local Community

Macleans College is located in Bucklands Beach, a suburban area of East Auckland. The land on which Macleans College sits was first settled by Nga Tai. Nga Tai Ki Tamaki people first arrived on the Tainui Waka and settled in Tamaki. Clevedon, Maraetai and Howick were later settled by Nga Tai.

Over recent years large scale immigration of Asian, South African and Middle Eastern people has seen major population growth and this growth and ethnic diversity is reflected in the school roll.

Description of the School

The school was opened in 1980 by the Governor General, Sir David Beattie, with a roll of 199 students. The school is co-educational and was the first S80 or whanau house school built in New Zealand. It now has a roll of over 2500 students. Each whanau house comprises a large building with a variety of teaching spaces and a commons area which acts as a social space. The whanau is an extended family of approximately 300 students which operates as a mini school within the larger school. On arrival at Macleans College a student is placed in a form class. That form class is assigned to one of the whanau houses. The students remain in that form class and, therefore, in that house for the duration of their time at the college.

The roll in 2018 is 2543 students (includes 320 international fee payers). Source Kamar – school student database.

The school is Decile 9.

Results in the New Zealand external examinations place Macleans College regularly among the top schools in the country (state and private).

With the exception of Tokelauan all Ministry of Education listed nationality groups are represented on the Macleans student roll.

The School Name and Background History

The school is named after the Maclean family who immigrated to New Zealand in 1850 and farmed the area on which the school is built. The family has its origins in Scotland. They left in 1745 following the Jacobite rebellion to take refuge in Cornwall. Here they lived near the small village of Blisland, close to Bodmin. While in Cornwall they were known by the name 'Lean', but in 1845 the surname Maclean was resumed by some of the family. Originally two brothers, Robert and Every Maclean, together with Robert's wife, Mary, and daughter, Ellen, migrated to Auckland. They were followed later by a younger brother, Benjamin, who was a tutor at St John's College. Their elder brother, John, remained in Cornwall.

Robert and Every successfully developed the farm at 'Bleak House' and were well known citizens of the district. Every, in particular, was a prominent figure in public affairs and a founder of the Auckland Agricultural Company. Mrs Maclean was known as a woman of exceptional character and energy who skilfully ran the farmhouse and tended to the sick in the area with her own home made remedies. She died in 1891, Every in 1901, and Robert, to whom there is a memorial stained glass window in All Saints Church, Howick, in 1888.

THE SCHOOL VISION

To deliver quality education and development opportunities to our students, ensuring that they receive excellent preparation for further education, acceptance of social responsibilities and work in an international environment.

MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of Macleans College is to work with the local community to create a school where every student is educated to achieve his or her full potential as a whole person; to create opportunities, expand horizons, reward effort and encourage excellence in the self-disciplined, inclusive, caring, safe and supportive environment of the whānau house system; to foster equity, respect, self-worth, interpersonal skills and a worthwhile value system, so enabling each student to make a lifelong positive contribution to society.

STRATEGIC INTENTS

Macleans College has three guiding principles, or cornerstones, namely delivery of quality teaching and learning, a belief in the importance of extra-curricular activity and the whānau house system. These three cornerstones underpin the strategic intents of the school.

Delivery of quality teaching and learning

- Maintain the pursuit of excellence in all outcomes for students and mindful of the priority given to ensure that the performance of Māori, Pasifika and special needs students is of high quality and every student is educated to achieve his or her full potential as a whole person.
- Macleans College recognizes and appreciates Aotearoa/New Zealand's dual cultural heritage. This school will also value and recognize the diversity of other cultures that exist in our community and provide opportunities for all students.
- Provide pathways for learning so that all students can succeed and leave Macleans for further education, training, sustainable employment and contribution to their community.
- Increase the involvement of culturally diverse groups and the awareness and acceptance of cultural diversity in general.
- Develop property and assets to enhance the delivery of curricular and extra-curricular programmes.
- Develop a sound financial base to support the operation of the school.
- Attract, employ, support and develop the capabilities of quality staff in all areas.

- Improve and enhance parental and community involvement in school activities and ensure that the communication and consultation links are strong and constantly enhanced.

A belief in the importance of extra-curricular activity

- Provide a range of extra-curricular activities, from social to elite level, to foster the holistic development of students.
- Actively encourage school-wide participation in extra-curricular activities by staff and students.
- Adequately staff and resource extra-curricular activities.

The Whānau House System

- Recognise the whānau house as fundamental to the delivery of comprehensive pastoral care for students, supporting learning, well-being and inculcating the Macleans Values.

Overarching Priorities and Principles

- Student achievement is the primary focus of the Board of Trustees and staff of Macleans College.
- The Board of Trustees and Staff of Macleans College are mindful of the current Government priorities for student learning and these are highlighted as goals to be resourced and actioned during the current school year.
- The necessity to consult with the parent community is also recognised regarding concerns, needed changes and suggestions to address student learning and pastoral care needs.
- Learning will take place in a secure, safe and supportive community where self-discipline, consideration and respect for others is constantly reinforced and practised.

This Strategic Plan has six areas of focus:

- 1 Student Learning, Engagement, Progress and Achievement
- 2 Self-Review, Planning, Reporting and Policies
- 3 Personnel and Employer Responsibilities
- 4 Finance and Property
- 5 Health and Safety
- 6 Administration and Compliance
